Hughes' Splendid Record in Labor's Cause

Have you examined the LABOR RECORD of the two candidates for the presidency?

Have you inquired how Wilson stands on labor questions and what has been the attitude of Hughes toward labor?

Let's get at THE TRUTH.

First, take the words of the Legislative Labor News of New York, October 10, 1910, when Governor Hughes was elevated to the supreme court:

"Now that Governor Hughes has retired from politics and ascended to a place on the highest judicial tribunal in the world, the fact can be acknowledged without hurting anybody's political corns that he was the greatest friend of labor laws that ever occupied the governor's chair at Albany. During his two terms he has signed 56 labor laws, including among them the best labor laws ever enacted in this or any other state. He also urged the enactment of labor laws in his messages to the legislature, even going so far as to place the demand for labor law in one of his messages to an extra session of the legislature.

"Only 162 labor laws have been enacted in this state since its erection in 1777—in 133 years. One-third of these, exceeding in quality all of the others, have been enacted and signed during Governor Hughes' term of three years and nine months.

"With such a record of approval and suggestion of progressive legislation in the interest of humanity to his credit, it is easy to believe that human rights will have a steadfast and sympathetic upholder in the new justice of the supreme court of the United States."

Now, let's take the record of Hughes as a member of the supreme court of the United States:

The California eight hour law for women was upheld by the supreme court, and Justice Hughes wrote the opinion that made it a law.

The pure food law of Illinois, prohibiting the sale of food preservatives containing adulteration, was upheld by the supreme court, with Justice Hughes writing the opinion.

The labor contract law of Alabama, which made the failure to perform contracts of labor a crime, was held unconstitutional by the supreme court, Justice Hughes writing the opinion, declaring that the thirteenth amendment was not limited to negro slaves, but was a charter of universal freedom for all persons of whatever race.

The Illinois child labor law was upheld by the supreme court, and Justice Hughes wrote the opinion.

The Iowa law, prohibiting railroads from making contracts with their employees, limiting the right to recover damages in advance of the injuries received, was upheld by the United States supreme court, and Justice Hughes wrote that opinion.

DEUTSCHLAND WILL RETURN THIS YEAR

(By Associated Press.)

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 2.—Ten million dollars' worth of dyestuffs and rugs and, it was said, "possibly stocks, bonds and precious stones," comprise the cargo of the German submarine merchantman Deutschland, according to a statement last night by Captain Paul Koenig, commander of the craft.

The Deutschland is in this port after having succeeded in making a second voyage from a German port to the American coast, despite the watchfulness of British and French war vessels.

First of the undersea merchantmen by use of which Germany hopes to keep open a trade route with the United States, the Deutschland, according to her captain, is at present the only vessel of that fleet, the Bremen, which started a voyage August 26 from the city after which she was named, he said, having been given up as lost. He thought she "must have struck a mine," but he added, "she has not fallen a victim to this almost blockade, I am sure of that."

The Amerika, which some reports have indicated was a merchant marine captured by the British, never existed, Captain Koenig asserted.

"I must keep up this traffic, alone, for the present—that is, the Deutschland must," he said. "In a fortnight I shall be gone. I hope to return before the end of the year."

It was possible, the navigator stated, that other merchant submarines would be built by that time.

In a summary of his voyage, just completed, Captain Koenig, who returned with decorations from German royalty as marks of recognition for his pioneer voyage, said this was "a quiet trip." Recital of its incidents, however, developed matters of lively interest. The Deutschland did not lie on the ocean floor this time, as in the voyage which ended at Baltimore last July. The submarine, instead, varied the monotony of its

Look Before You Leap; Think Before You Vote

The following is what President Wilson thought of the workingmen of this country when he was not running for office:

"Labor unions reward the shiftless and incompetent at the expense of the able and industrious."—Remarks of Professor Woodrow Wilson, February 25, 1905, at New Rochelle, New York.

"The Chinese were more to be desired as workingmen, if not as citizens, than most of the coarse crew that came crowding in every year at the eastern ports."

"And now there came multitudes of men of the lowest class from the south of Italy, and men of manner sort out of Hungary and Poland, men out of the ranks where there was neither skill nor energy nor any initiative or quick intelligence."

The above quotations are from President Wilson's "History of the American People."

At the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York City, Woodrow Wilson on March 18, 1907, has the following to say:

"We speak too exclusively of the capitalist class. There is another, as formidable an enemy to equality and freedom of opportunity as it is, and that is the class formed by the labor organizations and leaders of the country."

Again we have Woodrow Wilson, January 12, 1909, replying to an invitation to address a meeting on the subject of labor:

"I am a fierce partisan of the open shop and of everything that makes for individual liberty, and I should like to contribute anything that might be possible for me to contribute to the clarification of thinking and the formation of the right purposes in matters of this kind."

We have here the true thought of President Woodrow Wilson on labor. At the present time he is feeding you MOLASSES to catch your vote.

sailing under water or on the surface with occasional dodges beneath vessels identified as warships of belligerent nations, or thought to be. Seven times, Captain Koenig said, he maneuvered in this way. The last time was off Nantucket, when he sighted a "four funneled steamer" and dived beneath her.

"The storms gave us more trouble than this so-called blockade," he continued. "We were beset by heavy southwest gales for days and they were with us most of the way across. Fog also hindered us. We might as well have been submerged, the weather was so thick at times." The superstructure of the Deutschland was dented by the blows of the seas, but she suffered no severe damage, her commander said.
